

One Page Profiles...

Personal Centred Planning

How are we helping our pupils
ASPIRE and ACHIEVE?

What are we doing and how are we doing it?

- What is a one page profile?
- Why has it come into play?
- How are we responding to new ALN CoP?
- How are we going to develop?

What is a 1 Page Profile...

- It's a single page of writing that captures the important information about a person; including what is important to them, what people appreciate about them, and how they want to be supported.
- There are three sections in a one-page profile:
- 'Appreciation' – what people appreciate about the pupil, their character, gifts and talents
- 'What is important to' – what matters to them, from their perspective, about school and life
- 'How to support' – the 'expertise' from family, teachers and other staff about how to get the best out of the pupil (and the pupil themselves of course)
- One-Page Profiles can be developed and updated throughout the school year and as part of the curriculum.

What is it used for?

- How to separate what is important to someone from what is important for them and how they want to be supported.
- How to capture what people appreciate about the person.
- How to record this information in a one-page profile.
- How to discover what is working and not working in a situation from different perspectives leading to action plans that make a positive difference in people's lives.
- Different ways of developing one-page profiles for example one-page profile meetings and using FINK cards.
- The many different ways of recording one-page profiles.
- The range of benefits of using one-page profiles with colleagues; for example as part of person-centred team plans.
- How using person-centred thinking and one-page profiles can help to deliver personalised services.

How does this link with the new ALN changes?

- More child centred.
- Links to the other professionals that are linked with the learners. (Social services, Medics, Ed. Psych, Behaviour support etc.)
- Development of the IDP – Individual Development Plan.